Andy:

Please go ahead to dispose of the samples mentioned below to create some room for liquid samples. We will not use those samples in our study. I suggest that the caulk strip in S02000 (S-020) be treated as PCB waste (>50 ppm). Other samples may contain low levels of PCBs and should be disposed of as PCB waste (<50 ppm). Please check with your safety officer if you have any questions.

Subject: Sample disposal and freezer cleaning

Hi Dr. Guo,

Per our conversation on Monday, I am planning disposing the following samples to make more room in the freezer:

- S01900 (S-019) "Ceiling tile sample collected from the library building in Salem State College on 4/1/2010; Location: 4th floor, study room 433 (column N7 = 9850 ppm); size: 12" L x 12" W"
- S02100 (S-021) "Ceiling tile sample collected from the library building in Salem State College on 4/1/2010; Location: 4th floor, study room 432 (exposed to N7 column); size: 12" L x 12" W;
- S02000 (S-020) "CMU with caulk strip collected from the library building in Salem State College on 4/1/2010; Location: 4th floor, study room 432; wall next to N7 column (9850 ppm); size: 12" L x 12" W
- S07800 "Vinyl flooring sample (B2-040) from Salem State College Library, room 327; 5/20/10; 1' X 1'"
- S07600 "Ceiling tile sample (B2-038) from Salem State College Library, room 309; 5/20/10; 1' X 1' "
- S07700 "Ceiling tile sample (B2-039) from Salem State College Library, room 327; 5/20/10; 1' X 1'"
- S07900 "Vinyl flooring sample (B2-041) from Salem State College Library, room 309; 5/20/10; 1' X 1'"

Please let me know if this okay

Thanks,

Andy
